Delivering Survivor-Centered Impact.

Welcome to the Safe Haven Foundation 2025 Impact Report, presenting our key achievements, measurable progress, and unwavering commitment to advancing survivor safety, dignity, and justice throughout the year.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Safe Haven Foundation (SHF) entered 2025 as an early-stage but high-impact survivor centered organization responding to domestic and sexual violence in Nigeria. The Foundation transitioned from concept to delivery, establishing a functional shelter, deploying survivor services, strengthening institutional systems, and positioning itself as a credible partner for donors, government, and civil society actors working on protection and gender justice.

During the reporting period, SHF focused on four strategic priorities. Direct survivor support. Institutional strengthening. Strategic partnerships. Digital visibility and advocacy. The foundation aligned these priorities with expectations on results, accountability, safeguarding, and sustainability.

The organization received 135 complaints from across the country and abroad. SHF provided emergency shelter, psychosocial support, legal, and referral services to survivors of domestic and sexual violence, including boys.

The interventions prioritized survivor choice, confidentiality, and dignity, which aligned with international protection standards. The shelter became operational with clear intake procedures, safety protocols, and referral pathways, enabling timely responses to cases of imminent risk.

Beyond crisis response, SHF invested in survivor empowerment through mentoring, digital skills exposure, and confidence-building activities designed to support longer-term recovery and reintegration.

On institutional development, significant progress was made in building a strong organizational backbone. The Foundation developed and operationalized core policies and standard operating procedures, including safeguarding, data protection, financial controls, volunteer management, and staff capacity building frameworks. These systems strengthened compliance, reduced operational risk, and ensured readiness for donor funded programming. Targeted staff and volunteer trainings improved service quality, ethical practice, and trauma informed engagement with survivors.

Partnerships were a key accelerator of impact. SHF worked with civil society organizations, professionals, and advocates to expand referral networks, co-host activities, and amplify survivor centered messaging. These partnerships enhanced reach, reduced duplication, and reinforced collective responsibility for preventing and responding to violence against women and girls.

Digital presence emerged as a strategic asset. Through coordinated use of Instagram, LinkedIn, and the Foundation website, SHF expanded its visibility, increased engagement, and strengthened public trust. Digital platforms were used not only for awareness raising, but also for education, and access to services, with evidence that survivors increasingly discover and approach the Foundation through online channels.

An increasing number of survivors accessed SHF through AI powered search tools such as ChatGPT and Meta AI, enabling discreet early help seeking and significantly strengthening timely access to protection, legal support, and justice outcomes for individuals facing domestic and sexual violence.

ChatGPT frequently surfaced SHF as a credible and survivor centered referral point, directing individuals to SHF's website, emergency contact lines, and digital platform.

Despite operating in a challenging environment marked by limited funding, high demand for services, and systemic barriers to justice, SHF showed adaptability, accountability, and results. Lessons learned during the year informed clearer prioritization, stronger data use, and more realistic planning for scale.

Looking ahead, the Foundation will consolidate its shelter operations, deepen survivor support services, expand strategic partnerships, and pursue targeted funding to scale impact. The next phase will focus on sustainability, measurable outcomes, and contribution to broader national and subnational efforts to prevent violence, protect survivors, and advance gender justice.

SHF closes the year with a solid foundation, credible systems, and a clear strategic direction. The progress achieved demonstrates that focused leadership, survivor centered practice, and strong institutional discipline can translate vision into tangible protection and hope for those most at risk.

About Us

www.safehaven-foundation.org

Safe Haven Foundation (SHF) is a survivor-centered, trauma-informed, and rights-based non-profit organization committed to preventing and responding to sexual and gender-based violence (SGBV) in Nigeria. Founded with a clear mission to build a society where all individuals, especially women, girls, and vulnerable persons, live free from violence, SHF provides critical and holistic support services that promote healing, justice, and empowerment.

Mission

To prevent domestic violence and sexual abuse through strategic legal interventions, research-driven advocacy and support to survivors and offenders.

Vision

Together against violence, together for hope.

Core Values

Compassion- We prioritize empathy and kindness in every interaction, ensuring that survivors feel valued, supported, and understood.

Integrity- We uphold the highest ethical standards in our services, ensuring transparency, honesty, and trustworthiness.

Inclusivity- We believe in the dignity and worth of every individual, providing services that respect and embrace diversity without discrimination.

Safety- We provide a secure and peaceful environment where survivors can begin their journey to healing without fear.

Safe Haven Foundation operates through four main arms:

Shelter & Psychosocial Support

We provide survivors of domestic and sexual violence with immediate safe shelter, basic necessities, medical care, and trauma-informed counseling. Every survivor is welcomed into a space of dignity, protection, and emotional healing.

Advocacy & Public Engagement

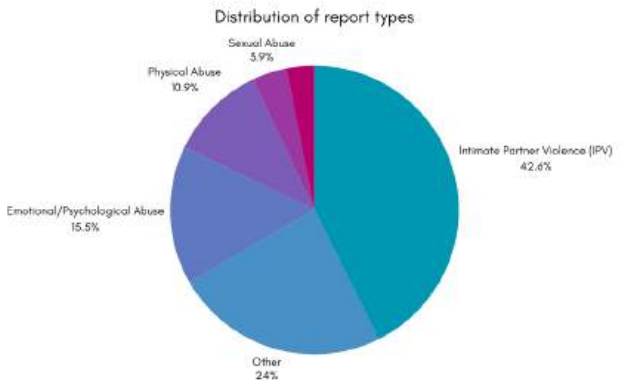

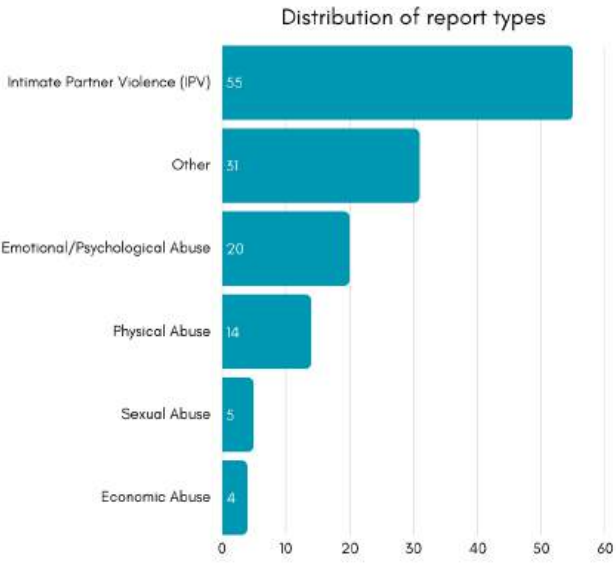

We drive national conversations, challenge harmful norms, and push for systemic change through targeted advocacy, awareness campaigns, and community outreach ensuring SGBV is not just addressed, but prevented.

Legal Empowerment & Access to Justice

Survivors receive free legal support, including representation in civil matters such as protection orders, custody disputes, and divorce proceedings. We stand by survivors in court and beyond, ensuring their voices are heard and rights upheld.

Evidence-Based Research & Policy Reform

We generate cutting-edge research on domestic violence, sexual abuse, and intersecting vulnerabilities providing data-driven insights that shape laws, inform policies, and guide institutional reforms across Nigeria.

Data Analysis

Reports by age group. Who is reaching out

Key facts from the data

- Among those who disclosed age, the highest reporting came from the 18–24 age group, followed by 25–34 and 35–44.
- Very few reports came from persons below 18, and none from persons aged 50 and above.

Interpretation

- The age distribution among disclosed ages shows that young adults are the most likely to seek help, which aligns with known SGBV reporting patterns. The absence of reports from persons 50+ suggests either underreporting or access barriers for older survivors.

Location of reports. Where cases are coming from

Key facts from the data

- FCT accounts for the majority of reports, with 61 cases, making it the primary hotspot.
- Lagos follows with 16 reports, showing strong urban reporting patterns.
- Other Nigerian states including Rivers, Oyo, Delta, Plateau, Kano, Edo, Anambra, and Nasarawa recorded smaller but notable numbers.
- There were 4 international reports, including cases linked to Canada, the USA, and Ireland.

Interpretation

- The dominance of FCT reflects SHF’s operational base, visibility, and accessibility. Lagos reporting confirms urban awareness and trust in SHF services. The geographic spread across multiple states shows national relevance, even where SHF does not yet have a physical presence.
- International reports signal diaspora engagement and cross border relevance.

Distribution of report types. Nature of violence reported

Key facts from the data

- Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) is the most reported case type, accounting for approximately 43% of all reports.
- “Other” forms of abuse account for 24%, showing complex or overlapping social issues like housing crises, economic empowerment and educational support.
- Emotional or psychological abuse represents 15.5%.
- Physical abuse accounts for 10.9%.
- Sexual abuse and economic abuse are reported less frequently.

Interpretation

- The dominance of IPV reflects the reality that violence most often occurs within intimate or domestic relationships. The high “other” category suggests that many survivors experience multiple, interlinked forms of social issues that do not fit neatly into one label.
- Lower reporting of sexual abuse and economic abuse does not indicate low prevalence. It more likely reflects higher stigma, fear, and normalization, especially around sexual violence and financial control.

Response patterns by case type. What SHF did

Key facts from the data

- Psychosocial support, including counselling and medical referrals, features strongly, especially for IPV and emotional abuse.
- Sheltering is used selectively, primarily for IPV cases, reflecting risk based decision making.
- Legal services appear in fewer cases, often as part of a broader response rather than a standalone action.

Interpretation

The response pattern shows that SHF operates primarily as a first response and coordination hub, prioritizing safety, stabilization, and survivor choice. The limited use of sheltering demonstrates responsible risk assessment, as shelters are reserved for high-risk cases. Lower legal service numbers do not indicate lack of legal need. They reflect survivors' common reluctance to pursue formal justice pathways immediately.

Cross cutting insights. What the data tells us overall

Key facts from the data

- Young adults are the most likely to seek help.
- IPV remains the dominant form of violence reported.
- SHF's role is primarily stabilization, referral, and psychosocial support
- Geographic concentration reflects visibility, not exclusivity of need.
- More people needed help for long term accommodation not emergency sheltering

Service Access and Response Patterns

In 2025, Safe Haven Foundation received reports predominantly related to intimate partner violence, with young adults forming the largest group of disclosed callers. Reports were concentrated in the FCT and Lagos, with cases also received from multiple states and the diaspora. SHF's responses prioritized psychosocial support, referrals, and risk based sheltering, reflecting survivor led and ethical case management.

Men and Boys as Allies in Reporting Abuse

Recent reporting trends reveal a notable increase in men and boys coming forward to report abuse on behalf of their mothers, sisters, and friends. This shift reflects growing public awareness of gender based violence as a collective societal issue rather than a private matter, and it underscores the impact of sustained advocacy, community education, and survivor centered messaging.

Men and boys are increasingly acting as first responders within families and social networks, particularly where survivors fear retaliation, stigma, or economic consequences. This trend signals a critical cultural change. When men and boys use their voices to interrupt silence and stand in solidarity with survivors, accountability deepens and pathways to justice expand.

Beyond direct service delivery, Safe Haven Foundation significantly strengthened its institutional reach, partnerships, and systems in 2025. Key milestones include:

01

Expanded digital presence and search visibility, leading to increased online engagement and enabling more survivors, families, and allies to locate SHF, access reliable information, and seek timely support.

02

Curated “SafeGuard360: Comprehensive Training to Prevent Sexual Exploitation, Abuse and Harassment in Organizations, a specialized capacity-building programme aimed at strengthening institutional safeguards and accountability.

03

Piloted a youth internship programme for students aged 15–18, creating early pathways for civic engagement, rights awareness, and leadership development.

04

Launched a legal fellowship programme for recent law graduates, strengthening access to survivor-focused legal support while building the next generation of gender-justice practitioners.

05

Established an online publication and policy platform, including Safe Haven Review: Voices Against GBV and a dedicated Policy Review Series, to amplify survivor-centred discourse and evidence-based advocacy.

06

Formalized strategic partnerships through Memoranda of Understanding with The Smile Outreach Africa, Babangida & Ibrahim Saleh Foundation, Tabitha Empowerment Centre, and Elite Life, strengthening referral networks and collaborative impact.

07

Delivered targeted humanitarian support through the distribution of 132 bags of 3kg rice to residents of underserved communities across the Federal Capital Territory, addressing immediate needs while reinforcing community trust.

Emergency Shelter

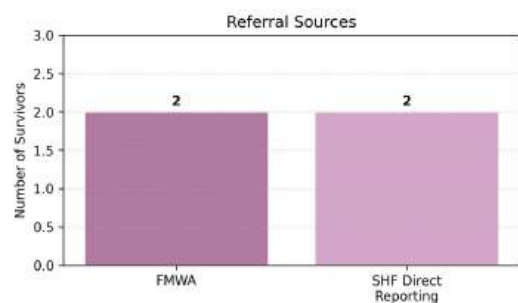

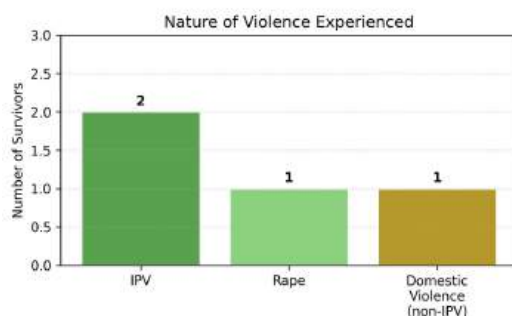

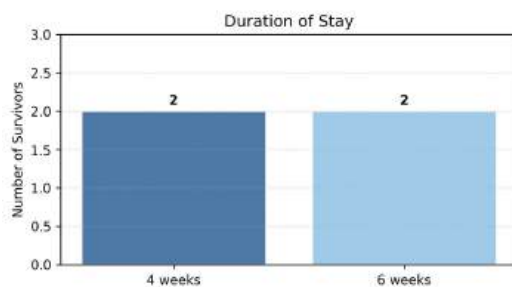

Safe Haven Foundation provided emergency shelter services to four female survivors of domestic and sexual violence; three Nigerians including one child and one non-Nigerian.

Key accomplishments include:

- Provision of round-the-clock shelter services in a secure and confidential environment.
- Access to basic needs including food, clothing, hygiene supplies, and medical care
- Facilitation of scholarship for one survivor up to University Level
- Securing paid accommodation for one survivor.
- Facilitated the return of non-Nigerian survivor to her home country in collaboration with the Zambian High Commission in Abuja.
- Rescued a 19 year old boy from a high risk and exploitative situation in Abuja and led his safe relocation to Kaduna State. Facilitated family tracing, accommodation and employment.

Shelter Services at a Glance (Jan-Dec 2025)

Total Survivors Sheltered: 4
Safe, confidential accommodation and holistic care provided.

Psychosocial Support

SHF ensured that all survivors in shelter and other nonresident survivors received trauma-informed, survivor-centered psychosocial care, critical to recovery, and long-term healing.

Highlights:

- Delivered 31 survivors assisted one-on-one trauma counseling sessions facilitated by SHF in-house clinical psychologist and external psychologist. All survivors had between 3-5 one-on-one sessions.
- Introduced healing-centered activities such as journaling and storytelling circles (for survivors' resident at the shelter).

Legal Advice and Assistance

Recognizing access to justice as a cornerstone of survivor empowerment, SHF provided legal support to survivors navigating the criminal justice system.

Key results:

- Offered legal advice to 5 survivors over divorce matters
- Offered legal representation to 2 survivors at police interviews.

Research and Publication

SHF continues to contribute to evidence-based advocacy through research and strategic publications that shape legal and policy discourse.

Milestones:

The Role of Bystander Intervention in Domestic Violence Situations
By: Prof. Fatima Waziri-Azi, Ph.D

Introduction

Domestic violence is a serious social and public health concern characterized by patterns of abuse within intimate relationships. It encompasses physical, emotional, psychological, financial, and sexual abuse.

While law enforcement and support organizations play a vital role in addressing domestic violence, bystanders—individuals who witness abusive situations—can be instrumental in prevention and intervention.

Bystander models foreground the responsibility of community members who witness or are aware of Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) to intervene in the situation and engage strategies to diffuse the violence and/or support victims to remain safe.(1)

Bystander intervention is intended to signal to perpetrators of IPV that their behavior is not acceptable and to galvanize other bystanders to prevent, interrupt, or address domestic violence and that taking the initiative to intervene is morally and socially desirable. This means that for those who witness violence or notice red flags, it is important to take any form of action instead of diffusing the responsibility on others if there are multiple people present or aware. Being an active bystander does not mean to throw oneself in the middle of the action or get completely involved every time they witness violence. (2)

The idea that bystanders have a responsibility to intervene in IPV is becoming increasingly common in policy responses across jurisdictions. Indeed, in recent years, countries such as the United States and Australia have implemented policies that include bystander intervention in IPV as a strategy for violence prevention.(3)

Studies have shown that interventions targeting intrapersonal and interpersonal factors have demonstrated more success in high-income countries than in low- and middle income countries.(4)

This may be due to such programs being poorly adapted to different contexts, lack of structured evaluations, and inconsistencies in what is considered a bystander intervention program in different settings.(5)

The effectiveness of bystander intervention programs that target communal and societal factors are harder to evaluate because bystander interventions may not be the main focus of programming and because of a lack of measurable indicators. However, Start, Awareness, Support, and Action (SASAI) in Uganda, Harass Map in Egypt, and Bell Bajao in India are a few initiatives that have shown promise in increasing positive bystander behaviors at community and social levels.

Breaking the Culture of Silence: Men as Victims of Domestic and Sexual Violence

By: Gary Kelechi Amadi

Introduction

Domestic and sexual violence have long been recognized as pervasive societal issues, yet public discourse and policy responses have mostly framed these crimes as gendered phenomena affecting women. This narrative, while critical in addressing systemic misogyny and protecting female survivors, has inadvertently rendered male victims invisible.

This article seeks to dismantle the entrenched stereotypes and societal taboos that silence male survivors, challenging the binary perception of violence that casts men solely as perpetrators and women as victims.

By interrogating cultural norms, institutional biases, and systemic gaps in support, this work advocates for a more inclusive understanding of gender-based violence, one that acknowledges the full spectrum of human suffering and fosters equitable pathways to justice and healing.

Historically, discussions of domestic and sexual violence have been shaped by patriarchal frameworks that equate masculinity with invulnerability and dominance. Men who experience abuse, whether at the hands of intimate partners, family members, or strangers, often confront disbelief, ridicule, or accusations of weakness, reinforcing a culture of shame that discourages disclosure.

Data from organizations such as the CDC and global studies reveal that approximately 1 in 9 men experience severe physical violence by an intimate partner, while 1 in 6 men report sexual violence victimization in their lifetimes.

These statistics, though staggering, are frequently minimized or omitted from mainstream advocacy, leaving male survivors without representation in policy, media, or support networks.

The absence of gender-inclusive language in legal frameworks and healthcare systems further exacerbates their marginalization, perpetuating cycles of isolation and untreated trauma.

This article argues that breaking the culture of silence around male victimization is not merely a matter of expanding statistical visibility but a moral imperative to redefine societal conceptions of strength, vulnerability, and justice.

By synthesizing interdisciplinary research, survivor testimonies, and comparative policy analyses, it critiques the limitations of current anti-violence paradigms and proposes actionable strategies for creating inclusive support systems.

The Impact of Social Media on Reporting Domestic Violence: Legal Perspectives, Benefits and Challenges

By: Nnabuchi Edeoga

Introduction

Social media has emerged as a transformative tool in addressing domestic violence, offering victims a platform to bypass cultural, geographical, and institutional barriers. Despite laws like Nigeria's Violence Against Persons (Prohibition) Act (2015), underreporting persists due to cultural normalization of abuse, fear of stigma, and distrust in legal systems. This paper examines social media's impact on domestic violence reporting, highlighting its ability to empower victims via anonymity, rapid dissemination of information, and viral advocacy (e.g., hashtags, survivor testimonials).

Key findings reveal social media's effectiveness in raising awareness and enabling reporting but caution that poor framing of incidents can perpetuate harmful stereotypes.

Recommendations urge stakeholders to strengthen policy implementation and address systemic root causes, such as poverty and gender inequality, rather than reactive measures. Future research should explore demographic influences on reporting and the efficacy of new technologies in encouraging victim engagement.

Domestic violence, a global human rights violation, encompasses physical, sexual, emotional, economic, and spiritual abuse, predominantly affecting women.

Globally, 35% of women experience intimate partner violence, with Nigeria reporting alarming rates: 73% of women in Lagos face lifetime Intimate Partner Violence (IPV).

Cultural norms in Nigeria often shield perpetrators, framing abuse as a "private matter" and discouraging victims from seeking help due to fear of retaliation or institutional apathy.

Social media's dual role; amplifying marginalized voices while grappling with ethical concerns like algorithmic biases and misinformation underscores its complexity.

Platforms like Facebook and Twitter enable real-time interaction and anonymity, yet challenges persist in balancing public safety with profit-driven content moderation.

POLICY BRIEF NO.1

Date: June 2, 2025

Leveraging the AU Convention on Ending Violence Against Women and Girls (CEVAWG) to Strengthen Nigeria's Response to Gender-Based Violence

BACKGROUND

Violence against women and girls remains a critical human rights and public health crisis across Africa. Despite the existence of regional and global instruments, systemic and widespread violations persist. Nigeria continues to experience widespread incidents of Sexual and Gender-Based Violence (SGBV), despite legislative and policy efforts such as the Violence Against Persons (Prohibition) Act/Law (VAPP) and Child's Right Act/ Law at the Federal level and State level. These instruments,

16 Days of Activism Event

SHF's 16 Days of Activism opened powerfully on November 27, 2025, with an inspiring gathering of young women from underserved communities. This opening event created a safe and vibrant space for learning, mentoring and honest dialogue on violence, safety and empowerment. The conversation was bold. The questions were thoughtful. The energy in the room revealed that girls thrive when they have knowledge, community, and support.

The event did more than launch the global campaign for the year. It reaffirmed the purpose of the Safe Haven Foundation: to provide protection, guidance and opportunities for young women who are too often unseen or unheard.

Each session, activity and interaction strengthened their confidence and amplified their voices at the very start of the 16 Days movement.

We extend our sincere appreciation to all the organizations that honored our invitation. Tabitha Empowerment Center. Elite Life Consulting. Daughters of Abraham. Auxano Foundation. Women and Girls with Albinism Network.

Their partnership and solidarity enriched the programme and demonstrated a shared commitment to ending violence against women and girls, both online and offline. Their presence affirmed that collective action remains the strongest force against all forms of gender-based violence.

Together, we set a firm foundation for the 16 Days of Activism. The momentum has begun and we intend to carry it forward with purpose, clarity and unwavering focus on protecting and empowering every girl.

Engagements spanned grassroots, policy, multilateral, and youth focused spaces.

Policy Influence

Participation at CSW69, EU RoLAC platforms, and Rule of Law sector convenings directly contributed to discourse on justice sector coordination, survivor centered approaches, and technologically facilitated GBV. These engagements strengthened SHF's policy credibility and informed its research, advocacy, and legal empowerment work.

Capacity Strengthening

Targeted trainings and technical convenings enhanced institutional capacity in trauma informed counselling, disability inclusion, and gender responsive systems, directly improving service quality for survivors supported by SHF.

Partnership Development

Events facilitated strategic partnerships with civil society organizations, multilateral actors, and youth led initiatives, contributing to referral pathways, co programming, and visibility that directly support survivor access to protection and justice.

STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIPS & COLLABORATION

At Safe Haven Foundation, we believe that transforming the landscape of SGBV prevention and survivor support requires more than passion; it requires partnership.

Collaboration is at the heart of everything we do, and the progress recorded in 2025 is a direct result of relationships built on shared values, mutual respect, and collective purpose. In 2025, SHF engaged in impactful partnerships that strengthened service delivery.

- FCT Women Affairs Secretariat: Collaborated on trauma counselling and medical support.
- National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons: Collaborated on referrals for investigations and enforcement.
- Police Gender Unit FCID:: Collaborated on referrals for investigations and enforcement.
- Federal Ministry of Justice SGBV Unit: Collaborated on trauma counselling.

- NGO Networks and Peer Organizations

- SHF signed an MoU with The Smile Outreach Africa (TSO) to formalize collaboration on survivor support and community outreach initiatives.
- Signed a MoU with Babangida & Ibrahim Saleh Foundation (BISH) for educational empowerment
- Signed an MoU with Tabitha Empowerment Centre (TEC)
- Signed an MoU with Elite Life.
- Joint partnership with TEC aimed at supporting adolescent girls in underserved urban communities across the Federal Capital Territory.
- SHF and AUXANO joint advocacy efforts to raise awareness and drive policy change on SGBV.
- The Founder of SHF, Prof. Fatima Waziri-Azi was named the 2025 Face of Voices Against Violence by TSO.

Looking ahead, SHF is actively seeking new partnerships to expand the scale and sustainability of our work.

Priority areas include:

- Core and Project Funding Partnerships with donor agencies, foundations, and philanthropic institutions.
- Academic and Research Collaborations for evidence-based research and policy reform.
- Private Sector Engagement to support survivor reintegration, skills acquisition, and workplace safety.
- Community-Based Organization Alliances to extend outreach and build grassroots prevention models.

To our existing partners, thank you for walking this path with us. To those we are yet to meet, we invite you to join us. Whether through funding, technical support, training, or visibility, your partnership can help us reach more survivors, change more lives, and build a safer, more just society for all.

DIGITAL PRESENCE, VISIBILITY, & PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT

In 2025, Safe Haven Foundation deliberately leveraged digital platforms to advance advocacy, survivor outreach, public education, and institutional visibility. Social media and the official website were deployed as complementary tools, each serving a distinct strategic purpose aligned with SHF's survivor-centered mandate and stage of organizational growth. Rather than prioritizing mass reach, SHF focused on credibility, trust, and meaningful engagement, particularly in sensitive contexts relating to domestic and sexual violence.

LinkedIn. Institutional Visibility and Thought Leadership

LinkedIn served as SHF's primary platform for institutional positioning, policy engagement, and professional outreach. In 2025, SHF published 241 posts and recorded 7,137 impressions, reaching 2,736 unique users across the gender justice, legal, development, and protection sectors. The platform generated 522 engagements, with an average engagement rate of 15.29% significantly above nonprofit sector benchmarks. Consistent activity across 346 posting days reinforced SHF's credibility, transparency, and presence within national and international gender justice ecosystems.

Instagram. Community Engagement and Survivor-Centered Reach

Instagram complemented LinkedIn by serving as SHF’s community-facing and survivor-oriented platform. In 2025, SHF published 241 posts, including educational carousels, safety tips, reels, and survivor-centered content, and reached 116 followers. While modest in size, the audience composition is highly mission-aligned. Women constitute 56.2% of followers, with the strongest engagement among the 25–54 age group, a key demographic for referrals, advocacy, and community-level norm change. Over 90% of followers are based in Nigeria, particularly in Abuja and Lagos, with emerging international visibility in the United States, United Kingdom, and other countries.

Website. Institutional Credibility and Access to Information

The Safe Haven Foundation website, www.safehaven-foundation.org, served as SHF’s institutional anchor and primary credibility platform. Between January and December 2025, the website recorded 3,848 active users, 3,809 new users, and 7,079 page views, with an average engagement time of 44 seconds per user. Traffic was driven primarily by direct access (49.9%) and organic search (43.3 %), indicating intentional engagement and institutional trust rather than reliance on social media referrals.

Nigeria recorded the highest engagement quality, with longer session durations and higher engagement rates, confirming the site's relevance to SHF's service delivery context. At the same time, strong traffic from the United States, United Kingdom, and other countries reflects growing international visibility. The most visited pages included Home, About Us, Services, Get Involved, and Contact Us, alongside guidance-focused content such as reporting domestic violence anonymously. This confirms the website's role as a gateway for verification, information seeking, and access to support.

Integrated Digital Footprint

Taken together, SHF's digital platforms formed a coherent and intentional digital ecosystem in 2025:

- LinkedIn advanced institutional authority, advocacy, and policy engagement.
- Instagram strengthened community trust and survivor-centered communication.
- The website anchored credibility, discoverability, and access to information.

This integrated approach reinforces SHF's accountability to survivors, partners, and donors, while extending the impact of offline programming.

CHALLENGES, RISKS, & LESSONS LEARNED

Key Challenges

Limited shelter capacity in the FCT

As demand for emergency accommodation increased, SHF faced constraints in securing alternative shelter placements for survivors who did not meet existing partner shelter criteria or who required extended stays. In addition, the organization received multiple accommodation-related requests from highly vulnerable individuals who were not survivors of sexual or gender-based violence. This highlighted a critical service gap and underscored the urgent need for a dedicated transit home to respond to broader vulnerability and crisis situations within the FCT.

Mitigation action

- Formalize MOUs with additional shelters to expand referral options.

Delays within the justice system

Survivors pursuing justice frequently encountered bureaucratic delays at the investigation stage. Such delays undermine survivor confidence, prolonged risk exposure, and contributed to disengagement from formal justice processes.

Mitigation actions

- Strengthen multi-agency referral escalation pathways with named focal persons.
- Expand early legal literacy and case counselling at intake to manage survivor expectations and options.
- Document systemic delays to support evidence-based advocacy and policy engagement.

Resource and funding constraints

Inconsistent funding limited SHF's ability to scale certain critical services, particularly post-shelter reintegration and long-term economic empowerment support. Many survivors required sustained financial assistance and livelihood opportunities to prevent re-victimization, but available resources were insufficient to meet this level of need.

Mitigation actions

- Diversify funding sources, including foundations, bilateral donors, and private sector partnerships.
- Integrate economic empowerment components into core proposals rather than treating them as add-ons.
- Establish a survivor reintegration reserve fund where feasible.

Lessons Learned

Partnerships strengthen survivor outcomes: Collaboration with the Federal Ministry of Women Affairs and allied civil society organizations reinforced the value of multi-sectoral partnerships in survivor referral, protection, and advocacy. Coordinated responses significantly improved access to complementary services beyond SHF's direct capacity.

Operational flexibility is essential in crisis response: The ability to respond rapidly to emergency referrals, provide transportation, or adjust service delivery in real time proved critical in protecting survivors facing imminent risk. Flexibility emerged as a core operational requirement rather than an optional capacity.

Early legal empowerment improves justice engagement: Providing survivors with legal information and rights awareness at the point of intake reduced confusion, anxiety, and drop-off from justice processes. Early legal literacy strengthened survivor agency and informed decision-making throughout case management.

Robust documentation enhances accountability and credibility: Improved data tracking and structured case documentation strengthened SHF's internal systems, enabled more accurate impact reporting, and enhanced institutional credibility with partners and donors. Documentation also supported learning and evidence-based program adjustments.

FINANCIAL SNAPSHOT & RESOURCE UTILIZATION

During the reporting period, SHF operated without institutional or donor funding. All programmes, interventions, and shelter operations were sustained through the personal commitment and generosity of trustees, family members, friends, and private well-wishers who believe in SHF's mission to end sexual and gender-based violence.

Despite operating under significant financial constraints, SHF maintained uninterrupted, survivor-centred service delivery. Through disciplined prioritisation, prudent financial management, and the dedication of staff and volunteers, the Foundation continued to provide emergency shelter, legal assistance, psychosocial support, and public education, ensuring that survivors in crisis were not turned away.

Key Financial Highlights

Primary funding source

- Individual contributions from personal networks and family-based support

Major expenditure areas

- Core staff salaries and stipends
- Essential operational costs
- Emergency shelter upkeep, including food, utilities, medical tests, hospital visits, and basic supplies
- Survivor welfare, including transportation and temporary accommodation support

What This Means

SHF's progress in 2025 demonstrates the strength of community-driven impact and responsible resource stewardship. However, reliance on personal networks is not a sustainable model for an organisation responding to rising demand for survivor support.

To scale services, strengthen systems, and ensure long-term sustainability, SHF requires core institutional funding and strategic donor investment. Support to SHF is not simply a financial contribution; it is an investment in safety, dignity, justice, and recovery for survivors who would otherwise have limited or no access to protection and care.

SHF is actively seeking partners and donors aligned with the vision of a Nigeria free from Sexual and Gender-Based Violence. Through core funding, project grants, or in-kind support, partners can play a critical role in expanding access to lifesaving services and protecting the most vulnerable.
